

Future Healers

This outreach program is focused on building better bridges between the healthcare community and our Louisville youth most impacted by gun violence. The goal is to introduce more youth to the field of medicine while helping them navigate through the emotional trauma stemming from the increasing violence plaguing their communities. Through compassion, mentorship and advocacy, this program will do its part to uplift and empower our youth to dream and aspire for a better future for themselves and the communities they reside in.

Opportunities for Participants

- Free Monthly lessons on topics covering nutrition, mental health, anatomy, first aid and more!
- Mentorship with medical students, physicians and other members of the healthcare community.
- Free materials for all the lessons with an accompanying Future Healers T-Shirt and bag!
- Optional participation in sponsored local field trips, community events, medical school tours and hospital tours.
