

Jared Anders, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Louisiana Monroe College of Pharmacy

About Me: I grew up in Baton Rouge, LA where I stayed for undergrad to march in the Golden Band from Tigerland at Louisiana State University (Geaux Tigers)! I then moved to Monroe, LA to get my PharmD before coming to UofL for my residency. UofL stood out to me in my residency search because it has all the benefits of a large, academic medical center while being very supportive and conducive to growth. Here, I feel confident that I will become the best clinical pharmacist I can be! My areas of interest are emergency medicine, academia, and leadership. In my free time I play music, spend time outdoors, and work on my car.

Ellie Gantenbein, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy

About Me: I am originally from Carthage, TN, and attended Tennessee Technological University for my pre-requisites. I received my B.S. in Pharmaceutical Sciences in 2021, my M.S. in Instruction and Curriculum Leadership in 2022, and my PharmD in 2023. I was drawn to UofL because of the fantastic people I met during the recruitment process and the opportunities to work in an academic setting. My interest areas include internal medicine, cardiology, and academia. UofL allows for so much growth in each of those areas, and it is evident that the preceptors are dedicated to my development. Outside of pharmacy, I enjoy cheering on the Volunteers (Go Vols!), spending time with my dog, and exploring Louisville with my co-residents.

Cheryl Page Jones, PharmD, PhD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Kansas College of Pharmacy

About Me: I am originally from a small town in South Carolina, however, my parents and extended family are all from Eastern KY. I obtained undergraduate and graduate degrees in biochemistry from Clemson University before attending pharmacy school at the University of Kansas. I interned in both the inpatient and retail settings throughout pharmacy school. UofL Health's residency was appealing to me as it included a breadth of clinical specialties while also providing a strong foundation in the fundamentals of clinical pharmacy. Gaining experience amongst the different facilities of the downtown campus allows me to collaborate in the care of diverse patient populations. It was evident that the atmosphere at UofL supports the individual growth of residents and is filled with not only the opportunity to learn, but also to make an impact. My current clinical interests include hematology/oncology, cardiology, and genomics. In my free time, I love to explore beautiful places, pamper my two dogs, and watch sports.

Megan Locklier, PharmD
PGY1 Community-Based Resident

Education: Doctor of Pharmacy - University of Cincinnati James L. Winkle College of Pharmacy; Bachelor of Science - Clemson University

About Me: I am originally from Lexington, South Carolina and completed my undergraduate degree at Clemson University. I moved to Cincinnati, OH for pharmacy school where I obtained my PharmD. The opportunity to work in a variety of specialty clinics with a diverse patient population as well as the distinctive structure of this program made UofL Health's community-based residency program stand out to me. I was impressed by this organization's dedication to its patients as well as its staff. I am excited to continue my pharmacy training at a renowned academic health center like UofL Health which places such high value on research, teaching, and patient care. My current interest areas include specialty pharmacy, oncology, and research. Outside of pharmacy, I love to read, spend time with my dog Henry and my fiancé and travel to visit my friends.

Madi Milby, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Findlay College of Pharmacy

About Me: I am originally from Indianapolis, IN but attended pharmacy school at the University of Findlay in Ohio. I was involved in Rho Chi and ACCP while also working as a CVS Pharmacy intern and Drug Information Graduate Assistant. At Findlay, I developed a passion for infectious diseases, pharmacokinetics, critical care and research. I am super excited to continue to grow as a new pharmacist at UofL! Outside of pharmacy, I enjoy exploring Louisville with my co-residents, reading, and trying new recipes!

Mikaela Rhodes, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: ETSU Bill Gatton College of Pharmacy

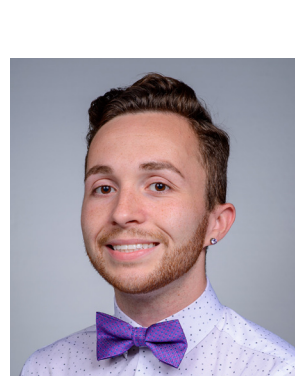

About Me: I am originally from Barbourville, KY. I graduated with my B.S. in biomedical sciences from Eastern Kentucky University and my PharmD from East Tennessee State University. When searching for a residency program, I was drawn to UofL because of their diverse number of rotation offerings, opportunities to practice at both a community hospital and academic medical center, and the opportunity to practice at a Level I Trauma Center. I attended a virtual open house for UofL and could tell that the culture here was different than any other place that I was interested in. After this open house, I knew that UofL was a team that I wanted to be a part of! My current interest areas are critical care and emergency medicine. Outside of pharmacy, I enjoy working out at Orange Theory, cheering on the Kentucky Wildcats, and baking!

Paige Robertson, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy

About Me: I am originally from Crestwood, Kentucky and attended Western Kentucky University for my pre-pharmacy coursework before moving to Lexington, Kentucky for pharmacy school. I graduated from the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy with my PharmD in 2023. During my four years of pharmacy school, I worked at the VA Hospital in Lexington as a medication reconciliation intern. In my APPE year, I completed several rotations at UofL Health and was immediately drawn to their residency program due to the wide variety of clinical rotations available. The ability to practice in an academic medical center under highly trained preceptors while having constant support and encouragement made the program stand out to me. My current clinical interests include oncology, internal medicine, cardiology, and infectious diseases. Outside of residency, I enjoy traveling, going to the lake, working out, going to concerts, and playing volleyball.

Kyler Easton Runyon, PharmD
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy

About Me: Hey y'all! My name's Kyler. I grew up in a small town in the Appalachian Mountains called Belfry, KY. I attended Eastern Kentucky University where I earned my Bachelor's degree in chemistry, then moved on to the University of Kentucky where I earned my PharmD. For residency, ULH captured my attention because of the academic medical center setting, diverse range of learning experiences, ample opportunities in my interest area of infectious diseases and, of course, the culture and people! While at ULH, I have been challenged, supported, encouraged to grow professionally and personally, and have developed relationships with peers and mentors that I will cherish for life. Outside of residency, I enjoy video games, working out, drag shows, the outdoors, and spending time with my co-residents.

Cecilia Schowe, PharmD, MS
PGY1 Pharmacy Resident

Education: Manchester University College of Pharmacy

About Me: I am originally from Fort Wayne, IN and completed my pharmacy pre-requisites at Purdue Fort Wayne and then attended Manchester University degree in pharmacogenomics where I earned my pharmacy degree and master's degree in pharmacogenomics. During pharmacy school, I was able to work at our local hospital as a pharmacy tech in the inpatient setting. This experience, along with my APPE's, helped narrow down my interests to emergency medicine and critical care. When looking for a residency program, I knew I wanted to train at an academic medical center and level I trauma center that would provide me with a challenging yet well-rounded experience. What drew me to UofL Health specifically was the variety of rotation opportunities, supportive preceptors, and ability to prepare me for a PGY2 in my area of interest. Outside of residency I enjoy going to concerts, trying new restaurants, and spending time with friends and family.
